

US wine drinkers turn to value bottles as consumption softens (Wine Opinions survey)

Outlet/publisher: The Drinks Business (survey: Wine Opinions, 1,351 US wine drinkers, fielded January 2026, 95% confidence, +/-2.7% margin of error)

Author: James Bayley

Publication date: April 2, 2026

URL:

<https://www.thedrinksbusiness.com/2026/04/us-wine-drinkers-turn-to-value-bottles-as-consumption-softens/>

Text capture via Claude (Cowork) web research, 2026-07-15. Key figures were verified against the source page that day. Formatting, images, and full article text are not preserved; use the URL above for verbatim context. Registered in sources.md.

Verified key content

- A net 16% of respondents reported drinking wine less frequently than 1-2 years ago.
- Reasons among reducers: 49% cited "cutting back on beverage alcohol in general"; 38% mentioned health/wellness reasons; 24% said preferred wines became too expensive.
- Spending per bottle: 50% unchanged, 39% spending more, 12% spending less.
- Among those spending less: "51 per cent agreed with the statement 'I can't afford to spend as much on wine as I have in the past'"; 47% cited discovering cheaper alternatives; 36% said previously purchased wines became too expensive.
- "54 per cent of respondents said they buy wines under $15 weekly or monthly" versus "only 28 per cent reported buying bottles priced at $30 or more at the same frequency."
- Quality-for-price ratings: under-$15 wines 4.70 of 7 versus $30+ wines 5.91 of 7 (buyers concede pricier wine rates better yet buy down).