

Where Wine Won in 2025 - and What the Growth Signals Are Telling Us

Outlet/publisher: Forbes (secondary reporting of Circana and Numerator data)

Author: Erica Duecy

Publication date: December 30, 2025

URL: <https://www.forbes.com/sites/ericaduecy/2025/12/30/where-wine-won-in-2025---and-what-the-growth-signals-are-telling-us/>

Text capture via Claude (Cowork) web research, 2026-07-15. Key figures were verified against the source page that day. Formatting, images, and full article text are not preserved; use the URL above for verbatim context. Registered in sources.md.

Verified key content

- "White blends are up 13% in dollars and 7.8% in volume year over year, per Circana."
- Chenin Blanc: "chenin purchase frequency is up 22% year over year" and "repeat households are up 6%" (Numerator).
- Josh Cellars Seaswept white blend: "reaching 195,000 cases in its first year on the market."
- "organic ultra-premium wines up nearly 20% in dollar sales this year."
- "sparkling wines priced above $15 remain one of the most resilient segments in all of wine."
- Non-alcoholic wine: FRE "holds roughly half of the U.S. non-alcoholic wine market"; French Bloom "one of the fastest-growing premium players in the space."
- "Half-bottles posted double-digit growth for many premium brands in 2025, including Rombauer and The Prisoner."