Verified key content

- SipSource full-year 2025 wine depletions: "They fell 6% in value and 9% in volume, according to SipSource data."
- "Competition with ready-to-drinks and demographic and generational shifts are also eroding wine's market share."
- Outlook: "I'm not expecting a material change in the trajectory of U.S. wine sales in the near term"; potential improvement in H2 2026 if economic conditions stabilize; structural headwinds persist.
- Method caveat we carry: wholesale depletions overstate consumer decline during distributor destocking.
